The main criteria for innovator community membership and award nomination is the uniqueness of the innovation, considering the local context. It should be clear what is new, what is different and what is the comparative advantage compared to services that are already available. In addition, the following criteria will help HiIL determine the nominations:

- Scalability of the innovation. Is there potential for scaling-up (including cross border)?
- Sustainability of the innovation. Can the financial sustainability of the innovation be secured?

Voting process and winner selection

- First, an online voting round will decide the Top 3 entries in each category based on the collected number of online votes.
- Second, the winners of the previous Awards rounds will hand out their wild cards to three additional entries in each category. These entries are selected from the remaining nominations. This way, the remaining nominees get another chance to reach the Top 3 finalists.
- A jury will decide on the final Top 3 finalists and will select the winner.
