From Chairman's Desk

Legislative Drafting becomes one of the important works in any State today. But there is hardly any course on this important subject. Therefore, the conception, formulation, techniques of law making and interrelated activities demand in-depth study and practice.

Legislative Drafting is an art and needs to be practiced. With that ending view KIIT Law School (KLS) introduced Legislative Drafting as a special paper in the Constitutional Law Honours student's course. The Centre for Study and Research on Legislative Drafting (CSRLD) was inaugurated by Garry Endicott, Senator of US Legislative Council on 13 th February 2016. The first Certificate Course of KLS was organised in 2016 wherein, there were participants from India and abroad. This is our second certificate course in which we will involve more resource persons and focus on recent trends of legislative drafting in international arena. We also look forward to the growing needs of Indian legislations. I hope, the participants will be immensely benefitted by joining this course to develop their skills of legislative drafting and the attitude required for this profession. I wish all success of this effort to develop legislative drafting as a tool of law reform and socio-economic change for which the centre was established in our law school.
