

II NLIU CHANDHIOK & MAHAJAN ARTICLE WRITING COMPETITION

About NLIU

NLIU Law Review is the flagship journal of the National Law Institute University, Bhopal. It is a peer-reviewed academic law journal, published biannually by the students of the University, which aims to inculcate a culture of academic research and writing among students and serves as an important forum for discourse on contemporary and pressing legal issues. As of the year 2025, the Law Review has completed fifteen successful years, with twenty-five editions in publication.

It has been recognized as one of the top ten law journals in India and has associations with several reputable databases along with possessing an ISSN.

Some of the NLIU Law Review's endeavours and initiatives in the previous academic year 2024-25 include its flagship event, the Second NLIU Agreement Drafting and Presentation Competition and the successful completion of the First Chandhiok & Mahajan Article Writing Competition with a staggering response of more than 200 submissions. These events are a testament to our commitment to legal scholarship and student engagement.

The NLIU Law Review has also received letters of appreciation from notable names in the Indian Judiciary: Hon'ble Justice Sanjay Kishan Kaul and Hon'ble Justice Ujjal Bhuyan of the Supreme Court of India.

Parameters of Evaluation

#1

TECHNICAL REVIEW

- Submissions made to the NLIU Law Review must be original and devoid of any plagiarized content. Plagiarism check is the first level of scrutiny that every manuscript shall be subjected to and it shall be conducted in two stages. The Editorial Board reserves the sole right to reject a manuscript, without review, if any instance of plagiarism is detected.
- A manuscript having no footnotes shall be rejected at Stage I of the Plagiarism Check as it will not meet the minimum criteria of the Law Review.
- Paraphrasing as well as verbatim usage of content without appropriate citation of authorities shall qualify as plagiarism.
- Any instance of plagiarism in the abstract or conclusion of the manuscript is a ground for immediate disqualification of the manuscript.
- Secondary plagiarism (plagiarism of the sources relied upon) is also a ground for immediate disqualification of the manuscript.

- Manuscripts that are not rejected at the Technical Review stage undergo Content Review. The Content Review is conducted in two stages wherein the manuscripts which are fit for publication as is, or do not require significant changes are shortlisted for Peer Review. The manuscripts are evaluated in Content Review on the following five parameters:
- The language of the manuscript must be crisp and concise. A direct statement or argument would be preferred over an indirect one and minimum usage of passive voice is recommended. Author(s) must be familiar with the usage of a term used in the manuscript. The author(s) may be marked down for unnecessary repetition, long-winded sentences, and irrelevant rhetoric.
- The manuscript must be logically sound and appropriate for the objective it seeks to achieve. Author(s) may be marked down for arguments based on incorrect premises or presumptions, the lack of a clear structure, or the lack of a proper logical flow.

Parameters of Evaluation

3. Contribution to Existing Literature

- If the topic of the manuscript is one which has been written about extensively in the past, the author(s) must consider what the contribution of the manuscript to the discussion is. Merely quoting and/or summarizing precedents would be inadequate. On the other hand, writing in a more innovative manner and providing a novel explanation/interpretation of a concept would be appreciated.

4. Contemporary Relevance

- Manuscripts are expected to include recent developments on the topic. A manuscript is considered to possess contemporary relevance when it deals with trending societal issues and legal issues that have not been given the attention they deserve. The topic may also be one that has faded from public memory but has reemerged for some reason. The relevance of the particular topic should be highlighted by the author(s) in the introduction.

5. Referencing and Research

- The manuscript must reflect an in-depth, and not just superficial research. The author needs to be aware of what citation is required in the circumstances, when to cite (and when not to cite) and the relevance of that citation.

 The Editorial Board may, in its absolute discretion, waive any of the above rules or amend the process. In case of any dispute or ambiguity, the decision of the Editorial Board shall be final and binding.*
